

Red door/green door

Make your decisions easier with this simple tool. For every decision you have to make, decide if it is a green door or a red door.

RED DOOR

High impact decisions. Difficult to undo. Have lasting effects.

GREEN DOOR

Low impact decisions. Easily reversible. 90+% of decisions are these.

Most of the decisions we make on a daily basis are green door decisions. These are decisions that we can and should make quickly. They are the decisions that we barely think about once we have made them, and often wonder why we spent so much time on them. For example, your mobile phone contract: you do not need to spend days balancing the pros and cons of the many options available. Pick one, try it out, if you need something different talk to your provider and change it.

On the other hand, red door decisions deserve a lot of attention. Buying or selling a house, who and if we should marry, changing job, writing a will etc.

Unfortunately, we often spend too much time on the green door decisions and not enough on the red doors.

Next time you find yourself agonising over a decision, ask yourself if it is a red door or a green door. If it's the latter, make a decision and move on. You can always change your mind!
